GEN. LEWIS BARS CAMP FOLLOWERS

Drives Whites and Blacks Alike Fifteen Miles Beyond Mercedes After Sentry Is Shot.

SPIES KEEP ENEMY INFORMED

Rio Grande Breaks Out of Banks, Fol lowing Storm, but Indiana Soldiers Are in No Danger

W. H. Blodgett, Staff Correspondence of The Indianapolis News]

MERCEDES, Tex., August 7.-The shooting of a Minnesota sentry by a Mexican prowling in the underbrush and the stealing of a horse from the Third Indiana have caused General E. M. Lewis, commanding Llano Grande camp, to tighten up the line. Not that the lines have been loose, by any means, but the camp is new and there is so much work to do that the commanding general has been busy and persons have been permitted in the camp who will be barred as soon as their presence is discovered.

There is no doubt but that there are spies in Llano Grande camp, and that the Mexican authorities across the river are well posted on what is going on on the American side in the various camps. It will not be long until every one visiting the camp must be able to give a good account of himself, particularly those who are found about the camp after night.

The Mexican who shot the Minnesota soldier had a horse in the underbrush. He made his escape, although chased nearly two miles, and he now undoubtedly is across the river among friends. The belief is that he either was a spy or a horsethief, perhaps both. General Lewis also drove away from the edge of the camp a number of disreputable characters, white and black, who followed the soldiers here. He did not permit them to stop anywhere within fifteen miles of Mercedes, and it is possible that he may place guards about two saloons that are operating close to Mercedes. He can not interfere with the operation of the saloons, but he can place guards there and prevent any of the soldiers from going in. Mexican authorities across the river are ing in.

The First infantry guard mount was held Saturday night, and the honor fell to Company M, First regiment, of Newcastle. Captain Walter Myers was the first officer of the day, and Lleutenant Hall was the first officer of the guard.

Louisiana Artillery Captured. Major Tyndall, commanding the Indiana field artillery, captured Major Owens and his Louisiana battalion at Donna. In working out a problem Major Tyndall went on a hike of nine miles, most of it through mesquite and underbrush, and when he ad the Louisiana artillery sur-when he had the Louisiana artillery surrounded he approached Major Owens and demanded his surrender.

"What." Major Owens exclaimed, considerably surprised, "are you out there?" pointing to the woods.

"We are, major," Major Tyndall replied, "and have your command surrounded. Will you surrender?"

"I suppose we are compelled to," Major Owens replied, "and, more than that, we will set up the lemonade." It was a good lesson for the Louisiana artillery and they will not be caught napping again.

A terrific storm, the worst of the season, came up early Saturday evening. But beyond uprooting a few trees it did no beyond uprooting a few trees it did no damage in Mercedes. About 7 o'clock the Indiana troops were notified by telegraph that a big storm was coming, and that the barometer was falling fast. The soldiers got to work, anchored the tents and put everything in as good shape as possible, and when the storm came they were prepared for it. A few tents were leveled in the First regiment and a number of tent flies were blown away. The store tent was thrown down and some of the kitchen shacks broken, but none of the stores damaged. Practically the same stores damaged. Practically the same thing happened in the Second regiment.

Worst Windstorm in Years.

No damage, except to a few tent flies, was done in the Third regiment and the artillery, signal companies and ambulance corps from Indiana escaped without harm. No men were injured and the sick in the hospital were so well protected that, save for the wind and noise, they would not have known that there was a storm. Citiever experienced in this locality, but at that it was not nearly so bad as many that have happened in Indiana. The rain made the roads impassable, and until noon Sunday seven automobiles were stuck in the mud between Liano Grande and Marcedes.

Another storm, with less rain, came Sunday afternoon. At the camp the tele-Sunday afternoon. At the camp the telegraph wires were put out of commission, but they were repaired again before midnight. When the storm struck the camp the Indiana Y. M. C. A. building was being dedicated, but the exercises went on without interruption, and there was little or no excitement. The big building stood the blows of the storm well, and no repairing will be needed except the replacing of a few boards. The rain converted the camp into its usual lake of mud, but a few hours of sun will remedy that.

It was reported that the Rio Grande had broken out of its banks and that the water would reach the camp. The Rio Grande is out of its banks, but it is not probable that it will get up as far as Liano Grande, which is much higher than the surrounding country. Several years ago the flood reached Mercedes and water was three feet deep in its streets, but nothing of that kind is expected now. Local rains do not affect the Rio Grande.

The Indianapolis officers and men hardly can believe that Dr. Frederick R. Charleton is dead. When the news came a few days ago from Indianapolis the whole Indiana camp was shocked, for it had seen him alive only a few days before it left for the border. Many Indiana boys had served with him in the Spanish-American war, and he was the close personal friend of Captain Payne, of Battery A, and was the captain's best man at his wedding.

Segregant-Major Robert Stillwell, of the Third battalion, was thrown from his Third battalion, was thrown from his horse, but he fell into a pile of soft sand and was not hurt. "The horse is all right." Stillwell remarked, "but I'm going to let some of the cowpunchers about here have a session with him before I try to ride him again."
